

Watermelon Tie Dye Denim Jacket

tie-dye
WATERMELON JACKET

Watermelon and tie-dye are two of the hottest trends this summer. Thanks to tulip, an old jean jacket, and your washing machine, you can carry these trends right into the fall. Who wants to rock this awesome outfit their first day at school? Everyone. That's who!

AN ILOVETOCREATE.COM EXCLUSIVE BY

Aunt Peaches

Materials

Tulip One-Step tie dye kit (includes rubber bands and gloves)

Tulip Fabric Marker, black

White or light colored denim jacket, cotton

Plastic bags

Water

Using the pink and green bottles from your Tulip One-Step kit, fill with water and shake thoroughly. Starting with the green, lay the denim jacket flat and use the nozzle of the dye bottle to add green dye along the color. Be careful not to add too much as the color will spread with time. Add a rubber band at the edge of the green dyed area to discourage dye from traveling further.

Repeat the same process for the pink area below. Depending on the size of your garment, you may find that one bottle of pink dye does not saturate the entire jacket, in which case, when the bottle is down to the last 20% or so, add more water, mix and go back to cover your garment. This will cause some organic looking variations in the dye patterns, which makes for a very realistic looking watermelon.

Cool!

Seal off in plastic bags and let it set overnight.

When the dye has set, rinse well with warm water, then throw it in your washing machine on the hottest setting with a small amount of soap. Dry as usual.

Now comes the fun part! Use your Tulip Fabric market to add seeds in random patterns all across the pink surface areas. The more the better.

Now all you need to do is wear it and look awesome as usual. Have fun!

Head over to our TIE DYE YOUR SUMMER site for even more inspiration, how-to's, and fun videos to get you mega-inspired for some DIY summer fun!

Designed By:
Aunt Peaches